SERVICE PLAN · STEPHENSON PHYSICAL THERAPY

Your service pages

Names, focus, and the patients each one reaches

A plain-language plan for Rebecca to review — nothing here is final until you're happy with it.

ACTION NEEDED TODAY

We need these six pages approved and locked in today.

The site framework is finished and waiting on exactly these decisions — writing the pages, wiring your credentials, and going live all depend on locking the names and focus now. Your sign-off today is what keeps launch on track.

Why we're revisiting this

Your site's design and framework are built and ready, and your Pregnancy & Postpartum page is already fully written — the model for the rest. What's left is the one call only you can make: what the six pages are called, and who each is for.

Today the pages aim unevenly. Two sit on broad, generic ground — the "Sports Medicine" or "Orthopedics" page every clinic has — while several groups of patients you're among the best in the country for have nowhere clear to land. This re-points them so people searching for exactly your kind of care find you.

Who you'll reach — and who you're missing today

As the pages stand, these patients fall through the cracks:

- Menopause and midlife women. Your copy promises care "from pregnancy through menopause and beyond," yet there's no menopause page — so women searching for midlife bladder changes, dryness, or intimacy find nothing, despite this being core to your expertise (and a first-line recommendation in 2025 national guidelines).

- People with lymphedema. "Oncology" isn't how patients search — they type "lymphedema." That label hides your certified expertise and leaves out your non-cancer lymphedema work entirely.
- Bone-health women. Buried under "Orthopedics," which reads generic and draws the wrong crowd, while the women who'd most benefit from your Pilates-based approach can't tell the page is for them.
- Men. You treat all genders, but there's no visible home for men's pelvic health — for example, recovery after prostate surgery.
- Pelvic-pain and sexual-health patients. Present in the copy only in passing, with no welcoming page of their own.

The pattern: two of your six pages compete in crowded generic fields while your most specialized patients have no door with their name on it. These six fix that.

The six pages we recommend

PAGE	WHO IT WELCOMES	WHAT'S CHANGING
Pelvic Floor & Bladder Health	Bladder leakage, urgency, prolapse, bowel issues — all genders	STAYING now clearly welcomes men too
Pregnancy & Postpartum	Prenatal aches, pelvic girdle pain, diastasis recti, recovery after birth	STAYING your flagship, already written
Pelvic Pain & Sexual Health	Chronic pelvic pain and painful intimacy, in a calm, trauma-informed setting	STAYING now clearly welcomes sexual-health concerns
Lymphedema & Cancer Rehab	Lymphedema care, manual lymphatic drainage, recovery after cancer	RENAMED from "Oncology," so people searching "lymphedema" find you
Osteoporosis & Bone Health	Safe, Pilates-based strength and posture for bone health	RENAMED from "Orthopedics," so the right patients recognize it
Menopause & Midlife Health	The menopause years — bladder, dryness and comfort, intimacy	NEW replaces the old "Sports Medicine" page

Dropped "Sports Medicine" — no real content, and a crowded generic field that isn't you; its useful pieces (like return-to-running after birth) already live on your Pregnancy page. And the three pelvic pages won't compete: each has a distinct job — one for bladder and function, one for pain and intimacy, and Menopause as a friendly starting point that routes women to the right one.

Built-in room to grow: "bonus specialties"

Every page includes an optional "bonus specialties" section we can switch on. These are short, ready-made signposts to the deeper sub-specialties inside each area — men's pelvic health, primary lymphedema, pelvic health after gynecologic cancer, and so on. They do two jobs: they tell those patients "yes, we treat this too," and they seed a future round of dedicated pages if any specialty earns its own. Approving the six today doesn't box you in — it lays the groundwork to expand on your schedule.

What each page speaks to

The words patients use, the conditions covered, and the optional bonus specialties each page can signpost. You're the expert — tell us what's missing or off.

1 Pelvic Floor & Bladder Health

SEARCHES & CONDITIONS	pelvic floor therapy, bladder leakage, overactive bladder, prolapse, bowel/constipation issues · stress / urge / mixed incontinence · urgency and frequency · incomplete emptying · fecal incontinence · interstitial cystitis.
SETS YOU APART	biofeedback, hands-on retraining, ultrasound imaging.
BONUS SPECIALTIES	• men's pelvic health — recovery after prostate surgery, male incontinence.

2 Pregnancy & Postpartum

FLAGSHIP

SEARCHES & CONDITIONS	pregnancy / postpartum PT, pregnancy aches, diastasis recti, return to strength · pelvic girdle and pubic pain · back / hip / rib pain · C-section and perineal scar recovery · postpartum leakage and instability.
SETS YOU APART	high-risk pregnancy experience, board certification, author of the national curriculum other therapists learn from.
BONUS SPECIALTIES	• high-risk pregnancy · athlete return-to-sport postpartum.

3 Pelvic Pain & Sexual Health

SEARCHES & CONDITIONS	pelvic pain, painful intimacy · chronic pelvic pain · painful intercourse · vaginismus · vulvodynia · pudendal nerve pain · tailbone pain · pelvic floor tension.
SETS YOU APART	a trauma-informed, patient-led approach that never rushes.
BONUS SPECIALTIES	• sexual-health rehabilitation · pudendal neuralgia.

4 Lymphedema & Cancer Rehab

SEARCHES & CONDITIONS	lymphedema treatment, swelling after surgery, recovery after cancer · manual lymphatic drainage · cording · post-mastectomy motion and scar · radiation-related tightness.
SETS YOU APART	certified lymphedema training and research in this exact area.
BONUS SPECIALTIES	• primary (non-cancer) lymphedema · pelvic health after gynecologic cancer.

5 Osteoporosis & Bone Health

SEARCHES & CONDITIONS	exercise for osteoporosis, safe strength training, protecting bones · osteoporosis and osteopenia · posture · fall and fracture prevention.
SETS YOU APART	Pilates-based approach; organized an international conference on osteoporotic fractures.
BONUS SPECIALTIES	• bone health through menopause · bone health for cancer survivors.

6 Menopause & Midlife Health NEW

SEARCHES & CONDITIONS	menopause and pelvic health, dryness and discomfort, midlife bladder and intimacy changes · genitourinary syndrome of menopause (GSM) · perimenopause pelvic health · recurrent UTIs.
SETS YOU APART	you cover the whole arc — pregnancy through menopause — and this page routes women to the right kind of help.
BONUS SPECIALTIES	• GSM deep-dive · midlife sexual health.

Getting your credentials right

PWCS — Board-Certified Pelvic & Women's Health Clinical Specialist

That's the current title, from the official ABPTS / APTA guidance in your accreditation notes: the specialty (established 2006) had a formal title change to "Pelvic and Women's Health" in September 2025, so specialists now use PWCS. Older materials still show the previous "WCS" (and one "WCCS" typo) — we'll correct all of them, and keep CLT and DPT consistent.

Your honors — the Elizabeth Noble and Lucy Blair awards, your 2025 textbook, your Brigham / MGH leadership — we'll feature accurately and let them speak for themselves.

One location question: "South Natick" vs. "Natick"

Your office is in South Natick, and that stays as-is on all your contact details. The only choice is how we describe your location in the page text. Far more people search "Natick" than "South Natick," so leading with "Natick" reaches more local patients while your address still reads South Natick; we can add "MetroWest" to catch nearby towns (Wellesley, Framingham, Sherborn, Dover, Needham). "Boston" and "New England" sound bigger but won't help nearby patients find you.

> Short version: keeping "South Natick" everywhere is fine — it just reaches a few fewer people; leading with "Natick" reaches more. Your call.

What we need from you today

To keep the build on schedule, we need the six pages above approved and locked in today. Quick gut-check:

- Do these six feel like you — anything missing, or not really your focus?
- OK with the new Menopause & Midlife page, and men's pelvic health living inside Pelvic Floor for now (as a bonus specialty)?
- OK with the two renames — Lymphedema (from "Oncology") and Osteoporosis (from "Orthopedics")?
- Location wording — lead with "Natick," or keep "South Natick" everywhere?

Once these are locked, we write each page in your voice — using your finished Pregnancy page as the model — and drop it into the framework that's already built. Nothing goes live until you sign off; locking the six today is what lets everything after it move.